Step Three: BATNAs and Best First Offers. Since not all negotiations are successful, you should be ready to walk away from the table. You already know what you need from the negotiation, and have a bottom line, but you should be prepared with a Best Alternative to a Negotiated Agreement, or a "BATNA".There are four steps in formulating a BATNA:

How to Prepare for a Negotiation | Negotiation Preparation ...

A classic piece of negotiation advice is to carefully evaluate (and seek to improve) your BATNA. The problem is, in most high-stakes negotiations, there's really no viable alternative to some ...

I call this negotiation consciousness. Negotiation consciousness is what makes the difference between negotiators and everybody else on the planet. Being assertive means asking for what you want and refusing to take NO for an answer. Practice expressing your feelings without anxiety or anger. Let people know what you want in a non-threatening way.
