The key message is the non-obvious. The need to be different. You need to think differently. In a world where everyone is one button away from being an expert, learning to think different is more important than ever. DO NOT to move to the middle (from "33 strategies of war"). Which makes unperfection the most interesting trend.

If you want to get a better idea of what people will be doing in the future, look for non-obvious trends. Non-obvious trends aren't right there in front of us. They're buried under lots of other information, and if you want to spot them, you need to become a trend curator. Think of what a museum curator does.
